We Dedicate

The 1951 Argo staff dedicates this book to Dr. Gilbert A. Swindler, chairman of the physics department.

Dr. Swindler, who was on leave of absence the second semester, has been at Westminster longer than any other faculty member, having taught here since 1919.

Dr. Swindler left in January 1950 for Otterbein, Ind., where he is living on his farm while attending Purdue university and studying atomic physics and nuclear physics.

At different times during the 31 years he has been at Westminster he has served as registrar, secretary to the faculty, dean, and chairman of the division of natural sciences.

During the war Dr. Swindler taught here in the Army Specialized Training program, and while on a sabbatical leave taught in the V-12 program.

As a member of the American Physical Society, the American Association of Physics Teachers, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Swindler has been named in the new edition of American Men of Science.

At home, Dr. Swindler writes at his desk

The President

Will W. Orr, D. D., Litt. D.

It's been a year filled with new responsibilities and activities, new friends, new surroundings, and more and more speaking engagements for President Will W. Orr and his family.

Since taking the oath of office as president of Westminster on October 14, Dr. Orr has worked with the Board of Trustees in planning major building construction, led numerous chapel and religious meetings, taken part in all-college activities, and has spoken before innumerable Alumni groups, church groups, clubs and other organizations.

At the Dance of the Year we saw Dr. and Mrs. Orr meeting the Homecoming queen; during Hell week we found Dr. Orr wearing a "dink" and seated with the "frosh;" at Seneca hills he led retreat meetings as well as helping to wash dishes; both Dr. and Mrs. Orr joined in the bidding to contribute at the Westminster Shares auction; at the Mock Legislature Dr. Orr gave his political views in his "state of the union" message; and in March students visited the Orr residence to talk with the president and his wife during one of the four open houses.

The naming of a permanent dean of men, the combining of departments, and the securing of an academic dean are some of the achievements of the administration this year. The organization of a baseball team has been promoted, the building of a field house has been planned, and in cooperation with the Board of Trustees construction has been planned for a new manse, Russell hall men's dormitory and an addition to the Science.

It has been a year of many changes on the campus of which the Orrs have been a part.

Academic Dean

Serving for the third time in the role of acting dean of Westminster college, Dr. John Orr will return to his position as head of the Bible department upon the arrival of the new academic dean, Dr. William Vander Lugt, in June. Dr. Orr has served as acting dean since 1946.

An honorary degree of Doctor of Pedagogy was conferred upon Dr. Orr at the inauguration in October.

Acting as a liason officer between faculty and the administration, Acting Dean Orr advises and plans all problems of the curriculum and class scheduling. He also sets the policy on student academic problems.

Dr. John Orr greets a visitor in his office.

Deans

Dean of Women Helen Sittig talks with campus leaders of Target, Pan-Hellenic council, and Senate.

Problems of men students are handled by Dean of Men, Wayne Christy.

The first rush of the fall opening, with its many problems of housing and orientation for Dean of Men Wayne Christy and Dean of Women Helen Sittig was hardly over when the formal inauguration of the new president, Dr. Will W. Orr made demands on their time.

Their responsibilities are endless, ranging from counseling, particularly freshmen, to planning the social program of college life.

Both deans serve on Student Council, with Dean Sittig acting in an advisory capacity to Senate, women's governing body.

Dr. Christy was particularly busy finding housing for men as the women moved into Jeffers hall. Dean Sittig, in directing the women's housing, is responsible for the observance of permission rules. In this connection she aided in the granting of later permissions following chapel on Sunday evenings.

College Business

Behind the scenes of any organization are many people whose work too often goes unnoticed and unheralded. In the various college offices, staffs of efficient workers devote their time to the detailed matters of the business of operating a college. Heading the business office staff is Mr. Ross Ellis, business manager who directs the financial program of the college.

Miss Isabel Ramsey, registrar, has the difficult task of keeping complete and accurate records of each student in the college. Her interest in students and the continual checking of individual records to see that each student is meeting requirements for graduation has helped more than one person in planning his curriculum and has aided the college in maintaining its standing.

Mr. William A. Johns, director of admissions and public relations, directs the promotion of college interest off campus. One service of value to both the college and individual students is his help in the placement of graduates of every department.

The development of promotional literature, investigation of industrial placement, the visiting of high schools to interview prospective students, and the establishment and maintenance of good public relations between the public and the college are a few of his responsibilities.

Art

The bare room in the Art lab was dark except for the faint light that filtered around the cracks of the windows. From inside the room came the soft sound of scraping tools and a slight padding noise.

No, it wasn't burglary, or mice. It was the minute sounds of a new class in session. A class in sculpture in the dark, a course new to the Art department this year.

Using nothing but their sense of touch as a yardstick, the students produce, in the dark, a clay representation of their perceptions.

In still another class, not in the dark, however, students create in wood, plastic, leather, or glass a type of art known as mobiles in which the relationships are constantly changing.

These forms of sculpture have then, form in space and in time.

Classes in commercial art are studying improved packaging techniques and practical adaptation of art to advertising. Creative design and color consideration, as they pertain to more effective advertisements, are studied.

Crafts class takes a practical turn when elementary education majors learn to create paper mache animals and puppets.

Posters around campus have taken on a professional look under the direction of art majors.

Caravan teams headed eastward and northward on a swing around churches in New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., and Boston were comprised of students of the Bible department learning at first hand the problems and possibilities of their future profession. These teams supervise youth groups and hold discussions and plan meetings with local churches.

The students working in various phases of the extra curricular program of the Bible department are active in campus religious programs and outside church work. Pastoral assistants from Karux, the pre-ministerial student group, are placed in churches in and around New Wilmington.

Under the direction of Dr. Wayne Christy, acting head of department, students travel weekly in two station wagons given to the college for such purposes—to assist in local church programs in adjacent towns.

Dr. Christy gives final instructions to a Gospel team leaving campus.

Philosophy

Two special projects of each year are the Week of prayer, in which the college and community groups join in religious services, and Spiritual Emphasis Week in the fall. This year Dr. Lee Edwin Walker of Pittsburgh was the speaker. During the latter a special speaker holds daily chapel and evening services and individual student conferences.

Bible school, Christian Youth Fellowship, Karux, comprise the organized campus groups for students interested in religious service.

Biology

In a third floor lab of the Science hall, florescent bulbs burn softly, heads bend industriously over dissecting pans, and piles of chelipeds, walking legs, mandibles or other parts from biological specimens cover the tables. These general biology labs meet every afternoon of the school week.

Aside from actual animals used in labs, new equipment was purchased this year. Wall charts, colored lantern slides, an opaque projector, incubators for use in embriology and bacteriology and a new seed bed for the use of botany students were added in labs on the first and third floors.

Two courses added to the department this year are Economic Biology and Conservation of our Natural resources.

Mrs. Frey answers questions of students in an advanced biology lab.

For elementary students and non-majors as well as its own students, the department showed moving pictures covering the fields of health and hygiene. In cooperation with Beta Beta Beta, the biological museum was renovated and an identification of the trees on campus was posted.

A project of the advanced botany class was raising flowers and plants in the Science hall. The botany students experimented with hormones, adding them to the plants and checking the reactions of these hormones upon the growth of the plants. Orchids and other plants equally as difficult to cultivate were grown in the experiments.

Non-majors taking biology made collections of insects, leaves and spring flowers which were collected from the surrounding country or on organized field trips.

A tropical fish club for both majors and non-majors was organized during the second semester. William Gilkey served as president with William Dye as secretary-treasurer.

Chemistry

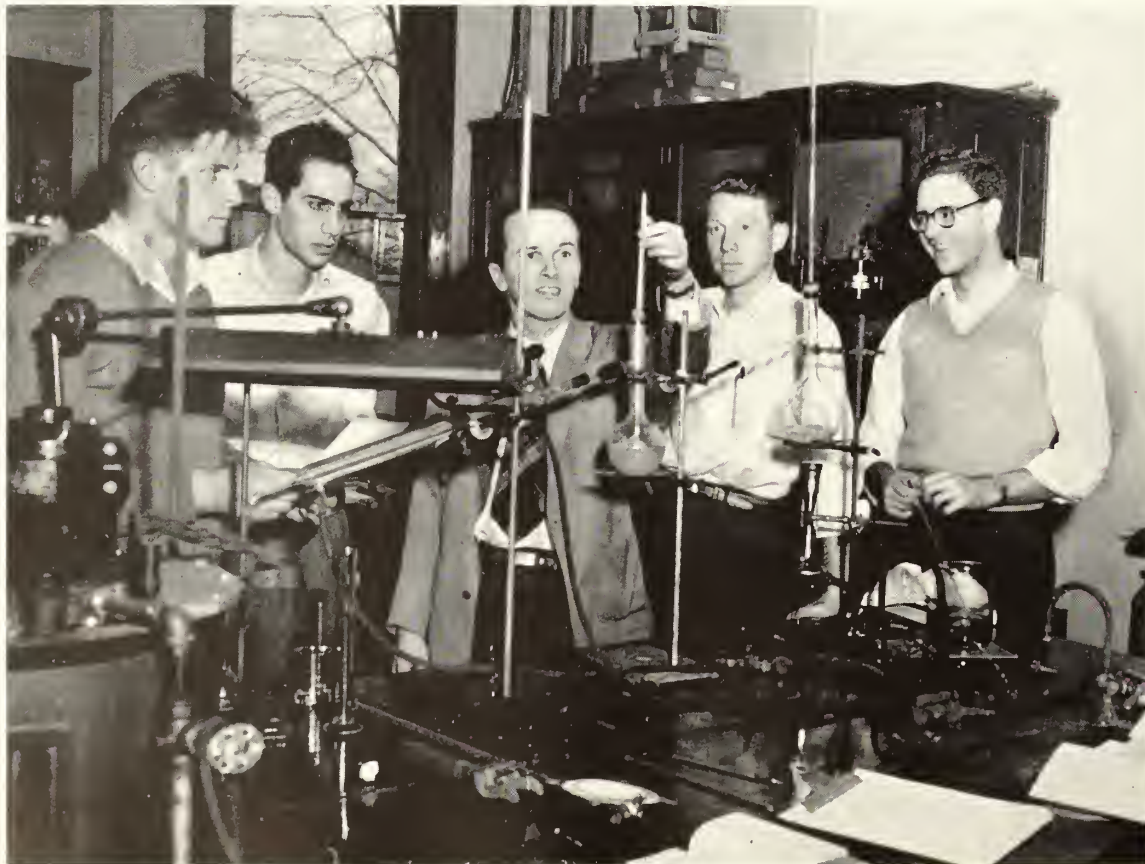

Thermodynamics, a course studying the mechanical action or relations of heat, and qualitative organic analysis, the systematic identification of organic compounds, have been added to the Chemistry curriculum this year.

Spurred on by thoughts of commercial and professional chemistry, seniors seriously analyzed the calorimetric determination of a ton of coal (how much heat a ton of coal would produce as figured out on the metric scale) from specimens collected for study from coal veins within a 50 mile radius of New Wilmington.

Many graduates of the chemistry department enter medical school from Westminster. Others go to hospital and research laboratories to become specialized technicians.

While chemistry majors labored with hydrogen and carbon compounds, Professor Gangloff worked with new diagnostic instruments in the field of thyroid diseases in connection with Ohio State university.

A play entitled "How Americans Win" was presented in a senior class in economic policies taught by Professor Captain McKee, Chairman of the department. The play, a new idea in illustrating economics, was acted by members of the class.

Visual aids in the form of film strips were used for the first time this year in the Sophomore Principles of Economics courses taught by Mr. Sloan and Mr. Calvert. The films use charts and illustrations to present economic theories.

Two new courses, Insurance and Taxation taught by Mr. Sloan and Taxation and Public Finance taught by Mr. Calvert were introduced in the department after a lapse of several years. Under economic topics the new course, Management and Work Morale was taught by Mr. Schanck.

With 158 majors in the department itself, 446 students enrolled in economics courses during the year. Of the approximately 75 graduates this year, some will go into business for themselves or with their family; others will find employment in industry. About 15 are contemplating graduate work and a few plan to go into teaching and coaching.

Elementary, Secondary

Comprising one of the largest departments on campus, the elementary, secondary, and graduate education groups are assembled under the title of Education department.

A book of poems written and illustrated by the members of the language arts class has been the outstanding feature of the elementary group for the year.

Along with the poetry writing, illustrations to aid teaching have been made. These illustrations take the form of projects such as fractional aids for arithmetic and puppets to help in oral and creative expression. A story hour for children was conducted weekly under the leadership of elementary education majors.

Secondary education majors learn in their classes to make tests, lesson plans for classroom use and some students are placed in charge of the class for a day or two. This initiates them for later classroom problems of presentation.

Dr. Everett L. Handy is in charge of the graduate program for the school. The graduate school for this year had on its roll 104 students taking courses in guidance, school law, clinical testing, diagnostic and remedial reading, and various related fields. Sixteen of this number are full time students while the rest of the group are teachers and principals who enter classes held during the night sessions.

This year, in both the elementary and secondary education departments, prospective teachers observed in schools in surrounding towns and later taught for six weeks in the schools. While three or four lived at home to do their student teaching, others commuted to New Castle, Hickory, Farrell, Sharon, and New Wilmington schools. Ninety-two were sent out during the year for this teaching experience.

The Canterbury Pilgrims, authentic reproductions based on early fifteenth-century water color drawings in the Ellesmere manuscript of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, were purchased this year by the English department. These miniatures, designed by a librarian in Germantown, are well known to English scholars in this section and will add much to the college students' interest as well as to that of adjacent high schools. Plans are under way to make them available to nearby schools.

A practical addition that added much to the students' whole academic progress was the new tachistoscope, a machine designed to improve speed in reading. Mr. John Forry reports an over all improvement of 18 per cent in his remedial reading class. This is a non-credit course for students having reading difficulties and many who are not required to take the course are seeking permission to improve their reading speed.

An added feature of the Annual Senior Library contest this year was the "duffle-bag" display. The last large group of veterans completed their college education this year and this display featured the dog-eared books they carried about in their duffle-bags during their time in service.

Books ranging from pocket-books of verse to the classics were submitted by G.F's.

More than 30 students participated in the Twelfth Annual Poetry Reading festival in which Paul Talley, Joel Mellinger, Phyllis Hartman and William Anderson were named as winners.

Both the Senior Library contest and the Poetry Reading festival are all-college in scope, being sponsored by the English department to increase an interest in reading.

Scrawl, also an all-college project, is the semi-annual literary magazine sponsored by the department. Contributors from many departments have aided in broadening the scope and interest of the magazine.

Three members of the English faculty, Miss Amy Charles, Mr. John Forry and Mr. George Bleasby passed their Ph.D. preliminary examinations in English this year. Mr. Robert McGill was added to the faculty to take the place of Miss Charles who was on leave of absence.

In addition to required courses in English, many courses taught before the war are now being revived. The English record library of poetry and drama was expanded this year with the purchase of several albums.

Journalism

Left—Writing, typing, proofreading, printing, and talking kept the News Bureau in constant activity. Right—Miss Nixon directs a lab in headline writing and copy reading, aided by Jack Shepherd.

A geriatrics study of journalistic needs of people over fifty and an analysis of how well magazines are meeting these needs was carried on by the seminar class in Journalism for the first time this year.

At the first of the year a small job press was installed in the News Bureau for the use of typography students. Three enlargers were added to the darkroom equipment for use in photography labs, and the United Press wire was installed again for use by the class in editing and headline writing and for posting stories on the news board in the main hall.

Two newspapers other than the Holcad were published during the year. The first, a paper written and published by the freshman class, and the second, a daily published during the three days of the Mock Congress.

Mr. Collins, director of the News Bureau, can be seen at all hours of the day and night taking pictures and writing and sending stories for college publicity.

Miss Nixon has been named by Who's Who In America as a representative woman journalist.

Learning and singing songs of Civil war times has become an annual affair with Dr. Creighton's American History classes. When that part of the text dealing with the Civil war is reached, books are put aside for one day while the classes sing.

Dr. Frederick Wilson, a speaker in the Lecture course series spoke to several history classes when he lectured here in March.

Requiring those who plan to teach history, other than history majors, to take more courses in the department has been tried this year. Better informed history teachers from Westminster is the department's goal.

The most dramatic phase of the Political Science program was the Mock Congress which was held March 20—22 in a gym redecorated in imitation of the Congressional setup in Washington. More than 1,000 people, including 435 students serving as representatives to Congress, political science majors who served as committee chairmen and journalism majors engaged in publishing the daily Congress News, and visitors from adjacent school took part.

In addition to visits to law libraries in Youngstown and New Castle, the students heard at first hand the problems and challenges of their future professions through visiting lecturers from law schools, sheriffs, district attorneys, mayors, and county commissioners.

The Sociology classes broadened their vocational interests by visits to social welfare agencies, and expanded discussions in criminology and the class on the family. This latter has had special significance for the married veterans on campus in recent years.

Majors in mathematics are mainly looking forward to positions in the fields of higher mathematics in industry, teaching, and government.

Many of these majors go on to take graduate work in the field. The rising trend of the number of women in mathematics can also be seen at Westminster where more and more women are registering for this department's courses.

Dr. Gilbert Taylor, the sole member of the Ancient Language department, is one of the senior members of the faculty in point of service having been at Westminster 25 years.

One of the finest scholars in the college, he continues to add to his knowledge by teaching himself a new language or reading some new scholarly book by way of recreation. His statement, "I doubt if I'll live long enough to do all the things I want to" summarizes his attitude.

His dry sense of humor, his philosophical and satirical asides add much to his classes. Classes in Greek and Latin comprise the offerings of the department, with Dr. Taylor teaching courses in Roman and Greek history which attract many students' elective hours.

One summary of modern languages has listed Spanish as the commercial language, German the technical and French the literary language of the world. The keynote at any rate is to add to the cultural development of the students and to give them opportunity for practical use of their linguistic skills.

Speakers presenting lectures in their native tongue, gave the language students a little more intimate knowledge of the countries about which they had been studying, as well as practice in the language.

Many of those who had taken foreign languages found a use for them last summer when they toured Europe with Walter Biberich, Associate Professor of German. Westminster students spent 60 days in sight seeing and language study in England, France, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy.

Mr. Biberich leads a German class singing German folk songs.

Several students have followed the language course plan which allows the junior year to be spent in Europe. Two of these students, while studying in the University of Zurich in Switzerland, managed additional travel and language experience in other foreign countries while abroad.

An understanding of the indigenous journalism and use of language is obtained by the use of French and Spanish newspapers for language study.

Learning songs in the various languages adds to the students' language facilities. Notable was the Christmas chapel program put on by the German classes and conducted completely in German.

Movies in French and German were shown to language students and others who were interested, sponsored by the Modern Language department.

The din of different instruments and voices issue from separate practice rooms of the conservatory at all hours of the day and evening. Busy with rehearsals much of the time, the music department provides talent for all Westminster functions needing musicians.

Responsible too, for the appearance of many guest artists, the artist course series has presented the Opera Trio, pianist Orazio Frugoni, and violinist Anita Lipp this year. Four visiting soloists complemented the College choir's presentation on Palm Sunday (see page 184). They were Genevieve Rowe, soprano; Mary Hopple, contralto; Harold Haugh, tenor; and James Hayden, baritone.

A choral group which also participates at times in the evening chapel programs is the Women's Glee Club, directed by Miss Ada Peabody. This choir presented its annual spring concert in May (see page 183).

Mr. Davis also directs the Westminster college Male Quartet, the conservatory's most-travelled group. Its itineraries have included cities throughout the tri-state area. Trilling clarinets, bleating trumpets, and booming bass horns may transform conservatory corridors into distorted sound tracks, but when they blend with their instrument-cousins in the building's rear room, the Westminster band is formed. (see page 182). Another nicely balanced instrumental group is the Little Symphony orchestra.

Junior and senior recitals in piano, voice, and violin helped to fill out the year's entertainment in music. Soloists and groups of singers as well as pianists and organists for the daily chapel are provided by the conservatory.

Non-music majors never know whether their more rhythmically disposed friends disappear into the conservatory for classes, individual practice, band, chorus, or a discussion with those who share their main interest. However, this stress upon our musicians' versatility precludes the over-all knowledge of music which they must acquire.

Professor Davis emphasizes a point as he talks with music majors in his office at the Conservatory. Below, Profesor Cameron directs a rehearsal of the college band.

Swimming, diving, basketball, and exercising are some of the activities of freshman and sophomore girl's physical education classes, under the direction of Miss Shirley Morgan and student assistants.

Physical Education

Including tennis and archery in its spring sports program this year, the physical education department continued to instruct men and women in swimming, basketball, volleyball, soccer, field hockey and soft ball.

Aside from classes, the department sponsored an intramural open house which made the pool and gym floor available to students who wished to participate in sports activities on afternoons and Saturdays.

Coaching the varsity men's sports as well as sponsoring intramural competitions for both men and women in volleyball, basketball, swimming and softball, the department added to the sports activities of the campus. The Mermaid water show and W.A.A. competition for women were also sponsored by the department.

New faculty instructors in physical education teaching in the department this year were Mr. Charles G. Ridl and Mrs. R. P. McDonald.

Physics

Surplus war equipment given to the Westminster Physics department last year has provided an incentive for members and students working in radio.

Dr. Robert M. Woods adapted an AM wired wireless transmitter for use by the radio workshop in broadcasting programs to the campus and the town of New Wilmington. A group of students interested in radio led by Thomas McLaren used surplus radio equipment to set up their own "ham" stations.

In connection with Professor Clayton Straw's first semester meteorology class, daily weather maps were posted and a daily recording thermometer and barometer were operated.

Dr. Gilbert Swindler, head of the department took a one semester leave of absence to study at Purdue University. Dr. Woods served as acting head of the department during the second semester.

The department includes eight upper-class majors, three of whom are seniors. Graduates from the department during the past two years have gone into high school teaching and grad-

Discoveries in the field of physics and methods of teaching as they pertain to physics were the subjects discussed at a meeting of Pennsylvania Teachers of Physics at Penn State in October, which many of the physics students attended. In December the students went to the University of Pittsburgh for a meeting of the Association of Physics Teachers of Western Pennsylvania and Environs. A third trip was made to Waynesburg college in the spring.

Dr. Woods and Mr. Straw attended the annual meeting of the American Association of Physics Teachers in February.

Psychology

Blanche Carrier

Professor of Psychology, Chairman of the Department

The Rabbi paused a minute before his lecture on Jewish customs and symbols. "Tonight we have with us a group of students from Westminster college."

This was one of the many field trips sponsored by the psychology department. One type of field trip investigates the various major fields such as social work, personal relations and guidance, which are open to psychology majors following graduation. Each major makes at least one of these trips during each of his years in college, and some seniors who are undecided in regard to future work make several during the year.

A second type is the field trip that grows out of the various psychology classes. Both majors and non-majors participate in these. Members of the social psychology class investigated peoples of various cultures. The abnormal psychology class attended a demonstration at the Western Psychiatric hospital in Pittsburgh, and visited a mental hospital.

Psychology majors Robert Rauck and Phyllis Ackerly give tests to David Orr and Margaret Ann Mercer.

Movies are used extensively in educational psychology because it has been found that they are more beneficial to these classes than field trips.

An important project for psychology majors during the year was raising money to buy equipment for a psychology laboratory. This equipment will be used in general psychology classes. During the second semester the seminar class conducted basic experiments in the psychology laboratory.

One of the courses that is termed most valuable is a one hour class taken by elementary education and psychology majors in which the students spend 25 hours observing elementary school children under normal class room conditions.

Secretarial

Mr. Mercer aids a student in typing class.

"It won't break regardless of how hard you throw it," announced Mr. Galbreath as he slammed the carriage of the typewriter. And surprisingly enough it didn't as he repeated the experiment several more times as if punctuating his remarks on the speed of their typing to the advanced typing class.

After the fundamentals of typing have been well established, the emphasis is then placed on speed with accuracy.

The people taking this advanced course and most of the other courses offered by the secretarial science department are interested in entering the business world as secretaries or stenographers. To obtain experience and practical knowledge, many of these students hold positions in offices around the college, where they not only learn to apply the theories learned in class but help pad their spending money.

Science

Equipment such as calculating machines, electric typewriters, and a stenotype machine are used in the classes to acquaint the students with the modern methods which they will meet in their professional life.

Two new machines added to the office practice room are a sound scribe which records letters on records for later transcription, and a new type dictaphone which records on a revolving belt instead of on a cylinder.

Office practice labs are used as testing grounds for future secretaries. Stencils are typed and run on the mimeograph or the ditto, students take dictation and transcribe the letters and perform a myriad other office procedures.

"Timed writings," "short takes," "long takes," "transcribing," are but a few of the specialized vocabulary words which can be heard in the classrooms.

As an experiment, in one typing class several students were hypnotized and by post-hypnotic suggestion they were told that when they woke up they would be able to type better and more accurately. Although the ability was temporary, one girl found that she was a better typist after being hypnotized.

Speech and Dramatic Art

Within the small sound-proof room the loudspeaker was quiet. The people in the main studio watched the clock anxiously, waiting for the final signal which would put WRW on the air for another week.

The original studios of WRW in the basement of the library were reconstructed this year, enlarging what had been two studios into three and adding several new microphones and a new intercom system between the studios.

The New Castle FM station became the outlet for an hour program on Thursday nights. A series of mysteries was presented and miscellaneous programs were put on the air direct from the studios on campus and piped through neighboring commercial stations. Mr. Barbe is director of the setup which is operated like a regular radio studio.

Operation 4006 was a three hour continuous broadcast from the studio to simulate a day of broadcasting. Hour shows were cut to fifty minutes and half-hour shows cut to twenty minutes, with station breaks from the studio.

Debating, another phase of the Speech department, argued the subject of "The Nationalization of Basic Non-Agricultural Industries," this year's topic. The team, under the direction of Melvin Moorhouse was able to meet and conquer debators from other colleges and as a special event gave a debate at the Western Penitentiary. Members of the debate team attended the annual tournament of the Debating Association of Pennsylvania colleges which was held at the University of Pittsburgh, and a debate clinic at Pennsylvania State University.

King . . .

Disappointments, upsets, thrills, and an undying spirit were outstanding in Westminster's 1949 football season. Games that should have been won were lost, and sure losers were suddenly turned into wins or ties as the Blue and White won two, lost five, and tied two.

Starting slow against a traditionally strong team, Slippery Rock, the Titans dropped the first game of the season, 21-0. Bouncing back from this whitewash, the Titan team dropped a tough one to Juniata, 21-18. Westminster trailed at half time but came back to pull within three points of Juniata before the end of the game.

. . . Football

Hard, gruelling work under the early September sun pays off in the rain and snow in November. Mr. Washabaugh eyes the workout.

Against Thiel on the home field, Westminster drew a 7-7 stalemate. Dick Wharton climaxed an 87 yard drive by sprinting 19 yards to paydirt for the Titan's only score.

The Blue and White, inspired by a colorful Homecoming crowd, pulled the upset of the season in a 0-0 deadlock with high riding Allegheny. Considered a three touchdown underdog, the Titans held the 'Gators scoreless but could not manage to score themselves. Again it was Wharton who sparked the Titan offense and Dick Sylvester and Paul Campbell helped with valuable yardage. This game was certainly a "moral victory" for the Titans.

The Titans scored an easy 19-6 victory over the Bethany Bisons in the final home game of the season. Wharton, who averaged nine yards a play, scored first on a 45 yard sprint and again on a ten yard run. Dick Sylvester put the game on ice with a 15 yard touchdown in the final quarter. It was Wharton throughout who sparked the Titan offense in its best display of power all year.

The following week, again playing before a Homecoming crowd, this time at Geneva, the underdog Titans surprised the odds makers by downing a highly rated Covie team, 7-0. The lone TD of the game was scored on a pass from Gaylord Lutz to Mac Ward in the end zone.

Traveling to Waynesburg the following Saturday, the Titans suffered their third loss of the season, 27-6.

. . . Reigns In

Traditional rivals, Grove City scored three times in the final minutes of play to come from behind and beat the Titans, 33-20. A large Westminster crowd witnessed the interception of the decade when Harry Sample intercepted a Grover pass and rambled toward the enemy goal line. George Watto scored on a lateral from "Brick" Stevens for the first tally. Wharton scored minutes later on a line plunge and Dick Sylvester added the third TD on a 36 yard sprint.

The last game was played against undefeated St. Vincent at Latrobe. Out-classed in all department, the Titans dropped this one, 34-0.

Ten seniors leave this year from the Titan eleven. They are Jim Ambill, Bob Benyon, John Chiodo, Fred Evanoff, Bernie Kessler, Gaylord Lutz, Brady Mitchell, Bernard Raymond, and co-captains, Harry Sample, and Victor Taylor.

Dick Sylvester leads the pack in the Grove City game.

Basketball In . . .

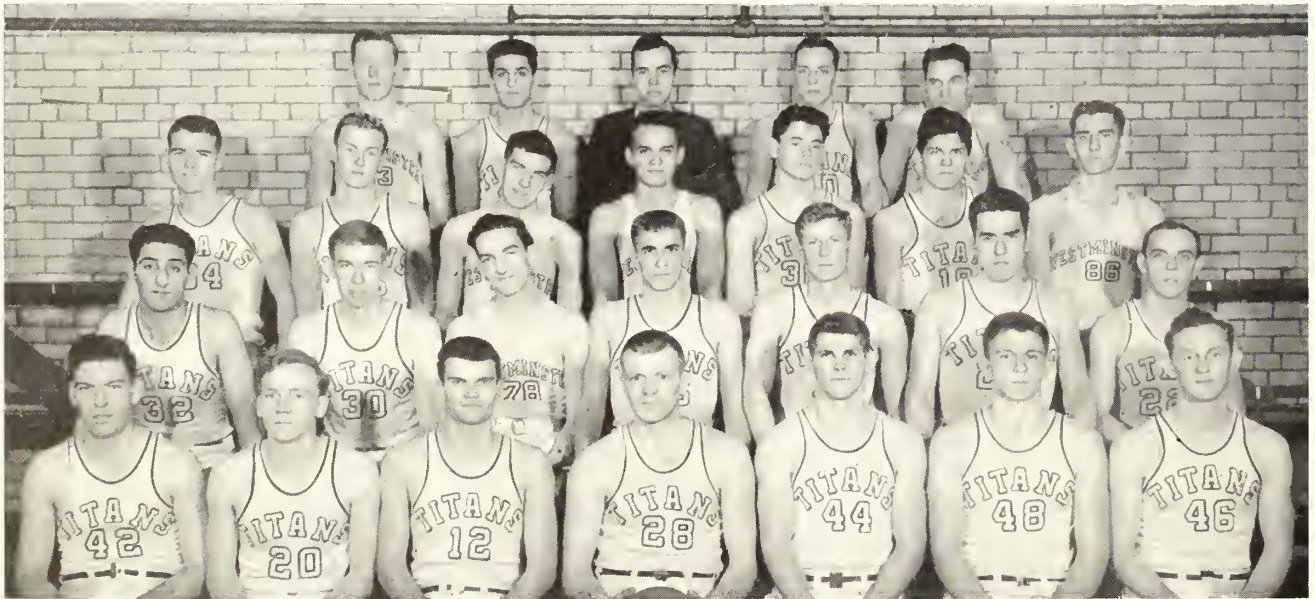

This season's record of 25 wins and four losses, including the two contests played in the NAIB tournament, gave Coach Grover C. Washabaugh a total of 204 wins against 76 losses in intercollegiate competition in his 13 year tenure as mentor of the Blue and White.

Our home floor record remained unblemished as the Titans turned in nine wins in the local gym for a record of 68 consecutive home victories since the famous "black-out" loss, 36-34, to the Dukes of Duquesne in 1945. This year's squad was also the only team to win more than 20 games in a single season since basketball was initiated at Westminster in 1892.

The season started out at a whirlwind pace as the Titans defeated Gustavus Adolphus, 68-41, at home on Dec. 7, 1949. Three evenings later they took a lopsided victory from Alderson-Broadus, 88-54, once more on the home floor.

Slippery Rock was an easy foe, but Geneva almost stole the game from the Titans at Beaver Falls on Dec. 15. A set-shot from the middle of the floor by Jack Jones with seven seconds remaining gave Westminster a thrilling 54-52 victory.

The squad went on an eastern trip through the Christmas holidays and defeated Upsala college at East Orange, N. J., 84-51, on Dec. 19. Two evenings later they met Seton Hall at South Orange and received their first loss of the season, 61-54.

Dave Hawbaker jumps center against an opponent in a preliminary game with the Benny Jones team. George Mauch, 26, and Jim Spangler, 22, look on.

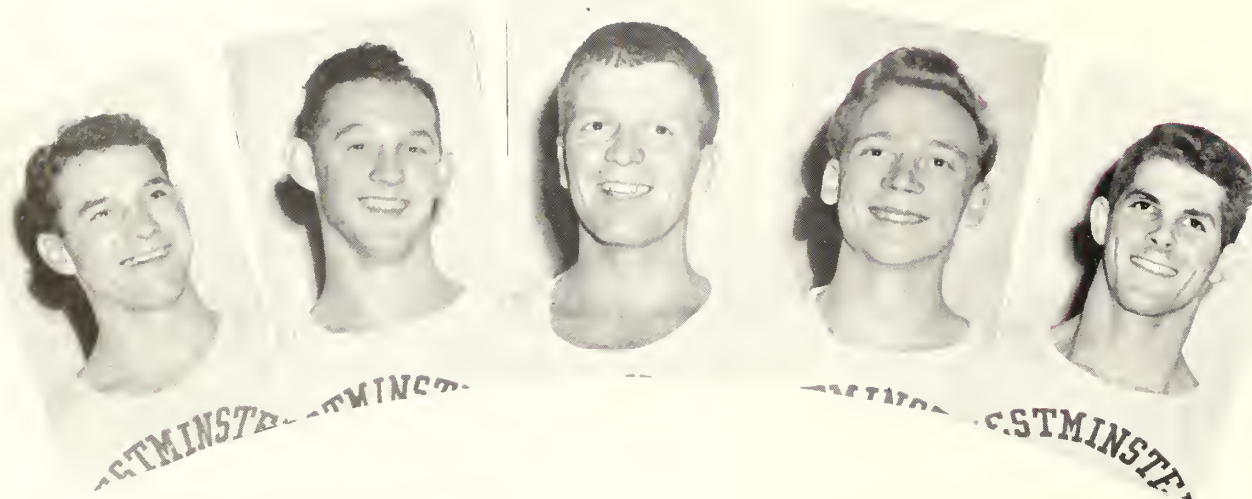

Pat King shoots from outside the foul circle in the first game of the season against Gustavus Adolphus. Jack Jones, 20, and Clyde Shaffer, 36, can be seen in the background.

Don Mayberry, 42, fights for the ball with Juniata opponents while Dick Fuhrer, 24, waits to enter the tussle.

Returning to Pittsburgh after Christmas the Titans met St. Francis on Dec. 29 and lost a close 70-68 battle to the Frankies in the Gardens. The Titans beat Pitt and Geneva again and then traveled to Cleveland Arena where they pulled their second close one of the season out of the fire, 70-69, over Baldwin-Wallace.

The Titans won the rest of their games in February and took two out of three games on an eastern swing through Pennsylvania. Millersville pulled the upset of the year by beating the Blue and White, 71-60.

After winning the Tri-State mythical championship, the Titans traveled to Kansas City to take part in the NAIB tournament. They were the top-seeded team in the second bracket and won their first game from the New Britton Teachers college of Connecticut, 70-62. However, Davis and Elkins college pulled an 85-75 upset over the Blue and White in the second encounter to cut short Westminster's stay in the mid-western city.

Senior players Allen McCullough, who was named as one of ten players to this year's All-State squad and to the first team of the All-District squad; Jack Jones, whose all-around play sparked the team; Clyde Shaffer, whose team play and defensive tactics will not be quickly forgotten; Bruce Wagner, scoring ace of the team; Dick Fuhrer, an excellent man on the backboards; and Jim Spangler, reserve forward will be graduated in this year's class. To these men and to senior manager Don Russell we give a host of congratulations to the most successful basketball season which Westminster has ever enjoyed.

To coaches Grover Washabaugh and "Buzz" Ridl, we give congratulations for keeping the team in the physical condition and right mental attitude so sorely needed during the torturous grind of so long and hard a schedule. We believe this year's squad will go down in Westminster's history as one of the "greatest of them all."

Soccer Grows . . .

Soccer, in its fourth year at Westminster, grew more popular with the players and fans and took a firm hold among varsity sports in 1949.

With six players lost through graduation from the previous year, Coach Harold E. Burry had little material to start the fourth campaign. The returning lettermen saw many new faces, mostly freshmen, and it was due to them that the team had its largest membership in Westminster history.

Many changes were made before and after the first game but Mr. Burry finally hit on a winning combination that won four games, lost two, and tied two. The season opened with Edinboro state teachers with a 2-0 win for the Titans. The game was played in a constant drizzle.

Grove City was the first team to visit Titanland and the game ended in a tie, 1-1; the two teams fought to a similar score in the last game of the season at Grove City. Thiel was the next team on the home schedule, and the Titans disposed of them in an easy game. The score was 2-0.

On homecoming weekend, the 'Gators of Allegheny college formed the opposition for the Burry booters. Freshman Ed Urban was the outstanding player in this game when he scored twice, while Tom Wilson added another to make the final score read, 3-1.

The first loss of the season was suffered at Slippery Rock where the Rockets beat the Titans, 3-0, in the only shutout of the season for the Burraymen. A few days later Frostburg edged out the Titans, 2-1, in a game played on the local field. These were the only two losses for the team, and they both came in the same week.

The Titans snapped their losing streak a week later when they beat Carnegie Tech in a game that was scoreless until Alex Spisak booted a goal with only 30 seconds remaining after playing two five minute over-time periods.

Six players will be missing from the scene when the squad takes the field next year. Through graduation, the squad will certainly miss Captain Art Shaffer, Norb Borowicz, Jack Torrey, Bill Samuels, Red Garret, and Ellis Daugherty.

Cross Country

With only one upperclassman on the squad, Westminster's 1949 cross-country team won two meets and lost five.

Coach Harold Burry's thinclads opened the season by losing to Case institute in Cleveland, 16-39, on October 8. The following Wednesday Willie Pherson and Bob Smith passed their opponents in a "photo finish" to give the hill and dalers a 27-8 victory over Gannon college at Erie.

The Burrymen finished second in a triangular meet with Geneva and the University of Pittsburgh. Pitt won the meet.

A new record was set for the local course by the Slippery Rock college runners when they shut-out the locals, 15-40, on October 18. The record time was 32.4 minutes.

With Captain Ralph Foster taking first place the Blue and White harriers edged the Geneva Covies in a thrilling contest, 27-28, for their second win of the season. Ralph Foster took another first place on November 16, as the Titans were edged by the Carnegie Tech Tartans, 29-26, on the home course. Coach Burry's men finished the season by losing to the University of West Virginia, 19-36, at Morgantown, W. Va., on November 12.

Westminster's harriers placed fourth in the Tri-state meet held on the Schenley park course in Pittsburgh.

Lettermen were Bob Bryan, Ralph Foster, captain; Frank Legge, William Pherson, Tom Kelly, Bob Smith, and Ted White. Frank Jones served as manager.

Swimmers Splash Into Limelight

Westminster's swimming team again splashed its way into the public's eye this year. They won seven meets while dropping four throughout the season which began in December and ended in March with the Penn-Ohio Tri-State championship meet.

The team, under the tutorship of Coach Harold E. Burry, was composed of returning lettermen and a group of freshmen who fought for starting positions from the very beginning of the season.

Under the Co-Captainship of Bob Braun and Fred Cassell, the squad began drills late in September in preparation for the opening meet against Grove City on Dec. 13. The conditioning was well worth the effort and time for the Titans came out on top with a 51-15 victory over the Grovers at Grove City.

The home season opened with a loss to Edinboro in our home pool. The score was 36-30. A strong Pittsburgh Panther team was the next visitor to the campus and the Westminster mermen bowed to the tune of 52-14. Then the Blue and White surprised another strong team, Slippery Rock, as they handed the Rockets a 35-31 trouncing in the losers' pool on Jan. 13. Later on in the season, the Rockets beat the local, 45-21.

Kent State was an easy foe for the Titans as they beat them, 48-18, in Kent, Ohio. However, Burry's mermen traveled to Pittsburgh the following week to take a 47-28 loss at the hands of Carnegie Tech.

After the Tech defeat, the Titans rallied to outswim their last four opponents. The easiest victory of the season was probably over Washington and Jefferson as the Blue and White poured it on for a 49-17 victory. The upset of the year was against the 'Gators of Allegheny college on Feb. 28 who tied Slippery Rock for first place in the Penn-Ohio meet at the end of the season. Harry Sampson, freshman freestyler for the Blue and White, and star of the afternoon, finished a body length ahead of the 'Gator's ace, Virg Sayre, in the final relay to give the burrymen their slim, 35-31 victory.

After that inspiring victory, the Titans went on to down Grove City, 48-18, and Thiel, 45-21.

Winning letters this year were Manager Bob Koepp, Bob Braun, Duff Brown, Fred Cassell, Paul Fenwick, Bob Gavett, Dong Reichert, Harry Sampson, and Ted Smith.

Sororities and Fraternities

Establishment of a new social fraternity, planning of the Homecoming queen campaigns, and regulation of rushing rules were duties of Pan-Hellenic council and Interfraternity council along with sponsoring the Interfraternity spring formal and the 1950 Westminster style show.

Ann Hepler is president of Pan-Hellenic while Dick Specker presides over Interfraternity council. Other Pan-Hellenic officers are Phyllis Brasher, vice president; Sue Nolph, secretary; and Isabelle Tidd, treasurer. Vice president of Interfraternity council is Al Waugaman and Don Totske serves as secretary-treasurer.

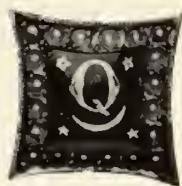

Led by these two groups, fraternities and sororities take the lead in providing social activities and fellowship among students.

Assisting the Independent Men with their Bargain dance was one of the activities of Quadrangle this year. Quadrangle is the independent women's local chapter of the National Independent Students association.

This year, in cooperation with the national organization, Quadrangle named Kay Fairlamb as a candidate for the Independent Sweetheart to reign over the national convention at Indiana university.

A Canasta party for all women on campus, a farewell picnic for seniors, a tea for freshmen and transfer women, and a party for the independent women's volleyball team at the home of Dr. Schuster, the sponsor of the organization, were features of the year's program of activities. Mrs. John Orr, patroness, entertained Quadrangle this spring.

Alpha Gamma Delta

A house repainted and redecorated with new furniture greeted the members of Alpha Gamma Delta when they returned to campus in the fall.

Navy jumpers and white, red-lettered crew hats dotted the quadrangle as the Alpha Gam's displayed new outfits. "Nothing Fishie About Our Welcome Alumni" was the theme of their homecoming decoration. Phyl Williams was the sorority's homecoming queen candidate.

On Halloween a costume party was held at the house, and later in the fall other women on campus were entertained at an open house.

A bridge party held in January honored Mrs. Purdy, A G house-mother, Mrs. Russell, and the sorority's patronesses.

Twenty-seven girls pledged Alpha Gam, and a pledge princess, Joan Beerbower, was crowned at the A.G all-college dance in March. A dinner dance was held in May.

Officers for the year were: Sue Nolph, president; Anne Osterhout, first vice president; Audrey Stoehr, second vice president; Dorothy Bauder, recording secretary; Marjorie Rollman, corresponding secretary; and Sue Brown, treasurer.

Beta Sigma Omicron

Beta Sig's homecoming rocket ship glided to earth bearing with it the cup for the best decorations of the homecoming weekend. Glook Glaser was sent to the roof to hold up the clouds while the judges passed by. Happy Eisenbeis was the candidate for homecoming queen.

Maroon jackets and hats made their appearance at an early home football game, and the scavenger hunt at the fall houseparty was a huge success even though Phyl and Lee are still wondering where they might find a bust of Beethoven. Pledging ceremonies were held for 17 freshmen after the final rush party where rushees received maroon angora mittens.

Christmastime brought the caroling party and a gathering at the house for sandwiches and coffee for all sororities and independent women. The formal dinner-dance in Ellwood City in January and the spring formal in May were the highlights of the second semester. A combination swimming-bowling-theatre party was held in March.

Beta Sig officers this year were Nancy Shane, president; Claire Philipbar, vice president; Edith Glaser, secretary; and Nancy Henderson, treasurer.

Third row: Margaret Wheeler, Joan Noble, Beverly Lewis, Sally McNally, Ruth Randall, Linda Law, Lynn Arwine.

Chi Omega

The Hatfields and the McCoys fought a bloody battle Homecoming weekend, but more damage was done when some over enthusiastic football fans from a rival school stole the Chi O signpost. Halloween proved the downfall of the wishing well but a new one will replace it.

A pancake breakfast for upperclass women was held the same day as the tea honoring Chi O mothers. A joint houseparty with the KD's was held at College hall. Redecoration of the house was begun with money donated by the Mother's club.

Sing and Swing on Parents' day was one of the big events for the Chi O's along with the Spring formal, houseparties, picnics, and the annual Easter egg hunt for faculty children.

A pledge class of 19 girls joined the Chi O's in December and were entertained at the slumber party held several weeks later.

Phyllis Brasher was president during the year with Edna McCuen as vice president, Arden Poorman as secretary, Charlotte Akins as treasurer, and Ruth Devlin as corresponding secretary.

Third row: Jean Chapman, Jewel Jennings, Marjorie Meyer, Patricia Wedel, Jane Bruggeman, Doris Bush, Amy Martin, Margaret Grant.

Kappa Delta

A "Coffee Cozy" at the house for other sorority and independent women began the Kappa Delta social year.

At Homecoming Natalic MacKenzie was selected as a queen candidate and the house was turned into a literal bee hive of activity with "Home Sweet Comb" decorations. The KD Clown took its place in the carnival booth at the gym that evening.

The first houseparty was held at College hall with the Chi O's and before the holiday season a pledge class of ten joined the sorority. Following rushing came the Christmas party for the sorority at Mrs. Fowble's.

A slumber party held at the house by the actives for the pledges allowed little sleep, and the second semester brought a children's party, plans for Sing and Swing, and the White Rose dinner in May.

Officers this year were Jan Cuthbert, president; Dorothy McBeth, vice president; Marge Powell, secretary, and Peggy Adams, treasurer.

Sigma Kappa

The slogan, "Be sure with Pat McClure," must have been right, for Sig Kap Pat McClure Harding was named Homecoming Queen last fall. Another Sig Kap, Becky Carson was named Block "W" queen in December.

The first houseparty in College woods, the all-sorority bridge party in the fall, the tea reception for patronesses and Mrs. Will Orr and Dean Helen Sittig, the ski lodge motif of the final rush party, all marked the social calendar of the Sigma Kappas this year.

Fifteen girls were pledged, including six upperclass women, and were feted with a pledge dinner at the Villa Nova. The slumber party held by the pledges for the actives featured impersonations of the actives.

Isy Tidd presided as president at the house which was newly decorated last summer. Alice Mitsos served as vice president; Barbara Shira, second vice president; Helen Papazickos, recording secretary; Marie Olson, recording secretary, and Peggy Lindquist, treasurer.

Theta Upsilon

A dragon, a clown, and a dancing girl were on the lawn as the Theta Upsilon sorority used a "Mardi Gras" theme in its homecoming decorations. A Halloween Masquerade was the "thing to wear" at the group's first house party.

Gold fish in bowls were given as favors at the final "Under the Sea" rush party. The sixteen girls who pledged were introduced at a Christmas party given in their honor. Paddles marked with the sorority crest were given as favors to the dates. Pledges recited poems dedicated to their sorority mothers at the annual slumber party.

"Windy Whirl", the first all-college dance in the gym following basketball season was presented by the TUs on March 10. On Parent's day mothers of the members received Mother Patroness degrees.

Officers who served during the year were Ann Hepler, president; Joan Henry, vice president; Gloria Jenzer, secretary; Charmaine Hazen, treasurer; Shirley Mack, alumni officer; Ann Nicodemus, editor; and Alice Vogel, chaplain.

When TU's get together there's singing, dancing, work, and just plain talking.

Independent Men

A spring banquet to honor new members and an all college "Bargain" dance in April were some of the activities of Independent Men this year. The group is a member of the National Independent Students of America and its membership is open to all non-fraternity men.

New members accepted in the social organization this year are Kenneth Albridge, William McKee, Frank Finlay, Emery Ashley, Robert Franklin, Lee Cropp and William Richardson.

Officers of Independent Men are James Neal, president; Robert Wachter, vice president; Joseph Guthrie, treasurer; Howard Frisbee, secretary; and William Duff, Student Council representative.

Second row: Larry De Noble, James Neal and Robert Wachter.

Phi Kappa Tau

The youngest men's social group at Westminster is the Phi Kappa Tau colony, formerly the local Delta Nu. Delta Nu was organized under the leadership of William Stedman, Henry Kautz, and Ray Splitstone when the need for a fourth fraternity at Westminster was discussed last fall. Jack Kimpel, Harold Denhart, Jay Gimlin, Gordon Mahan and John McKnight joined the group and the local Delta Nu was formed.

Dr. H. M. Hart of New Wilmington aided the group in drawing up a constitution and was also instrumental in making contact with the national office of Phi Kappa Tau. Dean of Men Wayne Christy and President Will Orr approved the constitution of the group.

Mr. George Bleasby accepted the position of faculty advisor at the group's request when a colony of the national fraternity was formed. Frank Jones, Robert McEwan, and Thomas McLaren joined the group at this time.

Men who have joined the fraternity since its affiliation with the national organization are Harry Aichner, Walter Richmond, Leo Lohr, Robert Trax and Paul Wierman.

Officers are William Stedman, president; Ray Splitstone, vice president; Henry Kautz, secretary; Jack Kimpel, treasurer, and John McKnight, sargeant at arms.

Alpha Sigma Phi

"Cathay Rendezvous", "Club 13," "Night With The Spirits," and numerous other dances and parties filled the social year for Alpha Sigma Phi.

For the first free all-college dress-up dance, "Cathay Rendezvous," Alpha Sigs turned the gym into an oriental showplace. The front of the building appeared as a pagoda, a dragon formed the bandstand, and in the center of the dance floor stood a huge, lavishly decorated budda. Roger Jarvis' band played for the affair while Chuck Pitcher and the Statesmen handled the entertainment.

This year's fraternity Homecoming award went to the Alpha Sigs for their "Old Women in the Shoe" theme representing Westminster before the arrival of a president. The decorations had moveable parts.

Television was installed in the fraternity house last fall and wrestling has been the main attraction since then.

At Christmastime Alpha Sigs serenaded girls' dormitories, singing carols behind a huge float. Larry Friday represented Santa in front of a fireplace with the lighted Christmas tree nearby.

Studying or singing, dancing or watching television, Alpha Sigs have a good time.

Twenty-two freshmen accepted bids from Alpha Sigma Phi and were pledged in December. The Christmas formal at South Hills country club in Pittsburgh was held during vacation.

Elizabeth Taylor was selected "sweetheart of Alpha Nu chapter," and in January, on Friday the thirteenth, Croy Pitzer entertained at "Club 13" held in College hall.

Don Book, Joe Amiano, and Al Sternberg coached Alpha Sig basketball and Ed Drylie and Bob Baer coached the football team in intra-fraternity sports. Special trips were made to Penn State and Bethany chapters for basketball games.

Open houses for Alpha Sigs filled in the gaps in the calendar when no campus activities were scheduled.

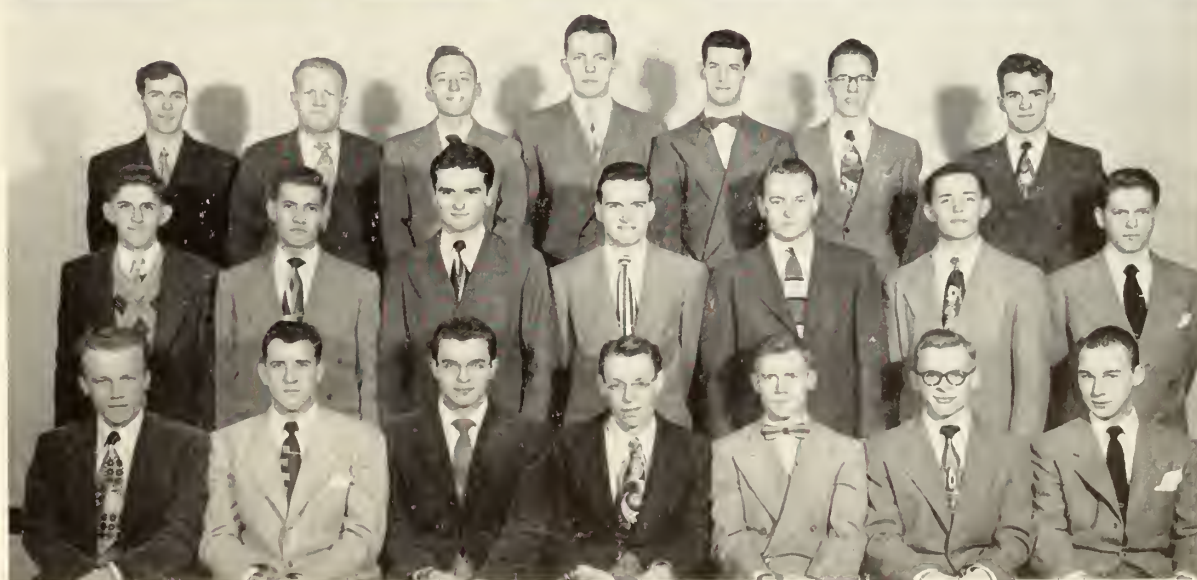

Don Totzke served as Alpha Sig president this year. William Gilkey was vice president; Statler Miller, recording secretary; Frank Darby, corresponding secretary, Don McAllister, treasurer; and Robert Clever, steward.

Sigma Nu

Parties, athletics, and other fraternity activities completed the social year for the Knights of Sigma Nu.

On the party side the Sigma Nus enjoyed houseparties monthly, formals at Christmas and Easter and numerous open houses during the year.

Two of the most successful houseparties were the "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" and a "Decent to Purgatory." At the "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" the house was turned into a prohibition era "speak easy" including bars on the windows with a knock-on-the-back-door routine. The "Decent to Purgatory," given by the pledges in March, found College hall decorated with wierd drawings and a casket with a body at the entrance.

Ellwood City's country club was the scene of Sigma Nu's Christmas formal. The spring formal was held at the Mahoning country club in Youngstown in April.

Fielding strong teams in the intramural leagues the Sigma Nus participated in football, basketball and softball. The basketball team defeated the Penn State chapter team during Christmas vacation and also participated in a Sigma Nu divisional tournament at Bethany College.

Sigma Nu

One of the first projects undertaken by the fraternity was the construction of a medieval castle scene which covered the front portion of the house during Homecoming weekend. A moat, gate, drawbridge and knight in armor made the scene realistic.

Another activity of the fraternity was the annual Christmas party for the children of the Mercer county orphans' home. The group, through donations by the members, bought gifts for each child which were presented in real Santa Claus fashion at a party given at the house.

Thirty-one men were pledged to Sigma Nu at the close of rush period and were initiated into active membership in April at the Sheraton hotel in Pittsburgh.

Alvin Waugaman served as commander of the fraternity this year. Other officers were Robert Carey, lieutenant commander; John McClure, treasurer; Howard Hazlett, recorder; and James Ambill, assistant treasurer.

Walking into the Sig Ep house in September was like coming home to mom's spring cleaning. Rooms were being painted, partitions were being knocked out and in general, all improvements which had been necessary were being carried out. The refurbishing brought gapes then smiles to the returning actives.

Along with the building, painting, studying and working on a Homecoming project came the fusion of two Sig Ep football teams which were to win the Intramural cup.

Rushing followed touch football and 29 men pledged Sigma Phi Epsilon. Immediately pledgemaster Abbie Reed's class made plans for renewal of the fraternity's Mothers' club.

Bill Dahlgren was elected to lead the fraternity through 1950, while Jim Russell, Fred Cassell, and Bill LeFevre were elected vice president, secretary, and comptroller respectively.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

A chapter paper, SPE Speaks, was published for the alumni of the chapter in order to keep them informed on the events taking place on the campus.

Rebuilding and re-landscaping of the house and lawn took place second semester. Sing and Swing, and the spring formal during Easter vacation were highlights of the second semester; also the annual "animal parade" by Sig Ep pledges.

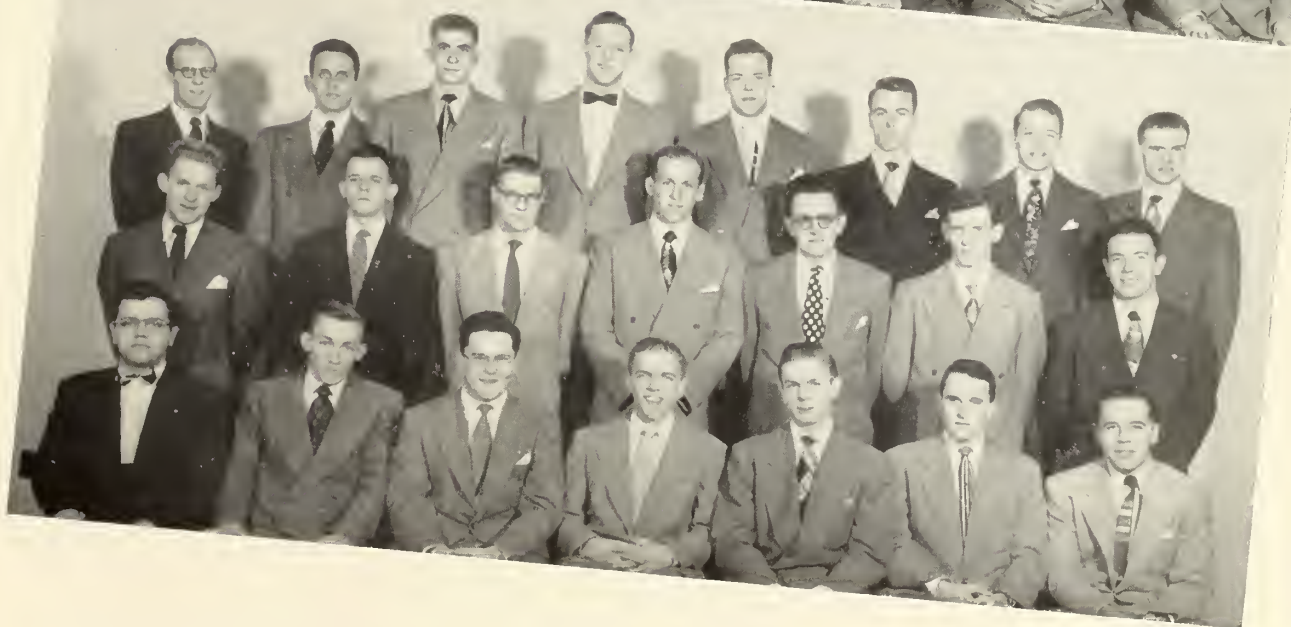

Sig Ep chapters from six other colleges, Davis Elkins, Pitt, Penn State, Thiel, Bucknell and West Virginia university were entertained by the chapter during the last weekend in April. Meetings were held Saturday afternoon and a banquet Saturday evening entertained the guests.

Fixing the radio, houseparties in the Lambda lounge, studying, or talking to your girl are all part of the week's activities at the Sig Ep house.

November

November

December

Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom" was presented by the Little Theatre in December with Phyllis Williams and Jack Griffiths in the leading roles. The Alpha Sigs serenaded all women's residences bringing Santa on their Christmas float. Sororities as a group went Christmas caroling at houses of faculty and fraternities.

At the Block "W" dance, "Winter Wonderland" in December, Rebecca Carson is crowned Block "W" queen by Bernard Raymond. Pianist Orazio Frugoni is lauded by students following his performance as part of the Artist course in January. The speech department began redecoration of the radio studio, and following examinations students crowded the Bookstore to buy books for the new semester.

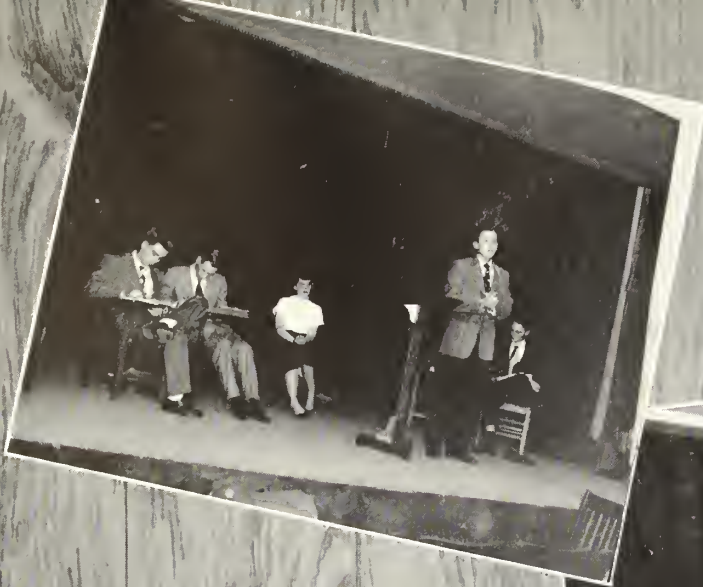

January

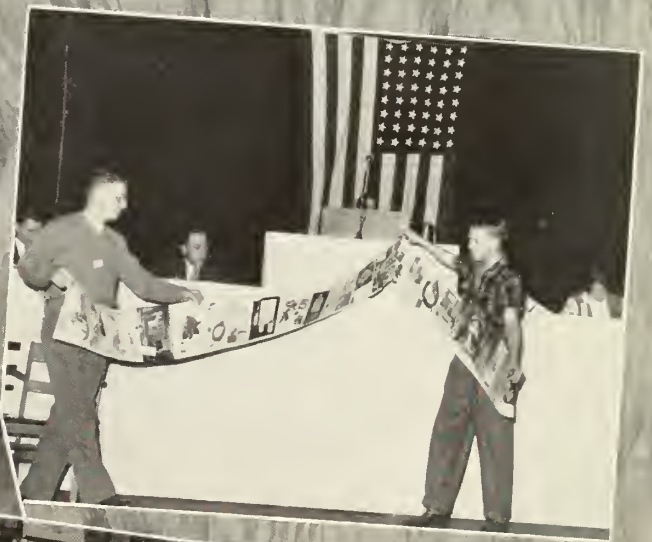

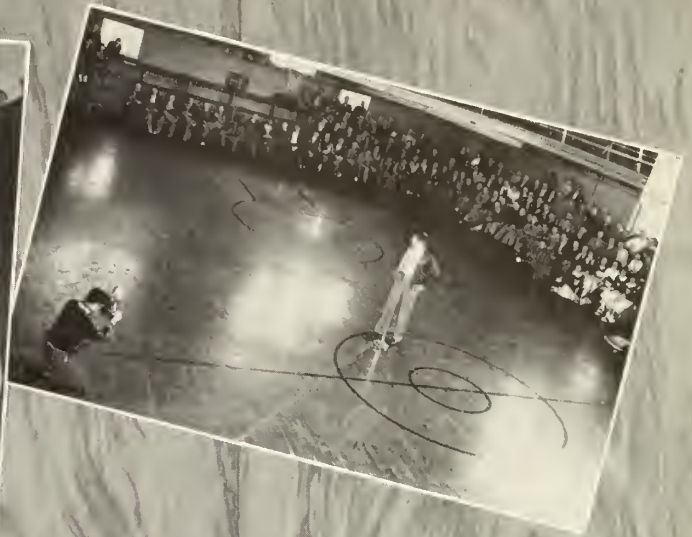

February

A student speech recital, "Arsenic and Old Lace" packed the Little Theatre for a second performance with proceeds going to the Westminster Shares fund. At the annual Poetry Reading festival, winners Paul Talley, Joel Mellinger, William Anderson, and Phyllis Hartman talk with judges and read from their poetry award books.

Violinist Anita Lipp performed at the college as part of the Artist course in March. A tired but successful basketball team was welcomed to the college and a half day of festivities in their honor took place. At the Mock Legislature President Will Orr arrives to deliver his "state of the union message," Frank Thom and Ralph Foster exhibit liquor advertising, and "Speaker of the House" Glenn Reed presides.

March

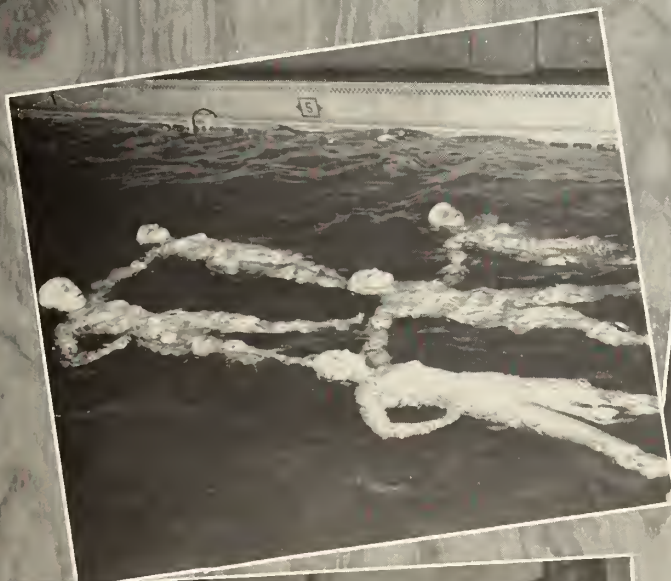

March

Later in March Dr. Frederick Wilson, lecturer, talked with history majors. Bobbie Cloud and Walt Cleary cut out a paper moon while decorating for the junior prom, Tavern on the Green. Later the Alpha Gams held their all-college formal, "Heavenly Holiday." The first Shakespearean play to be given by the Little Theatre in four years, "Two Gentlemen From Verona" took place the latter part of March.

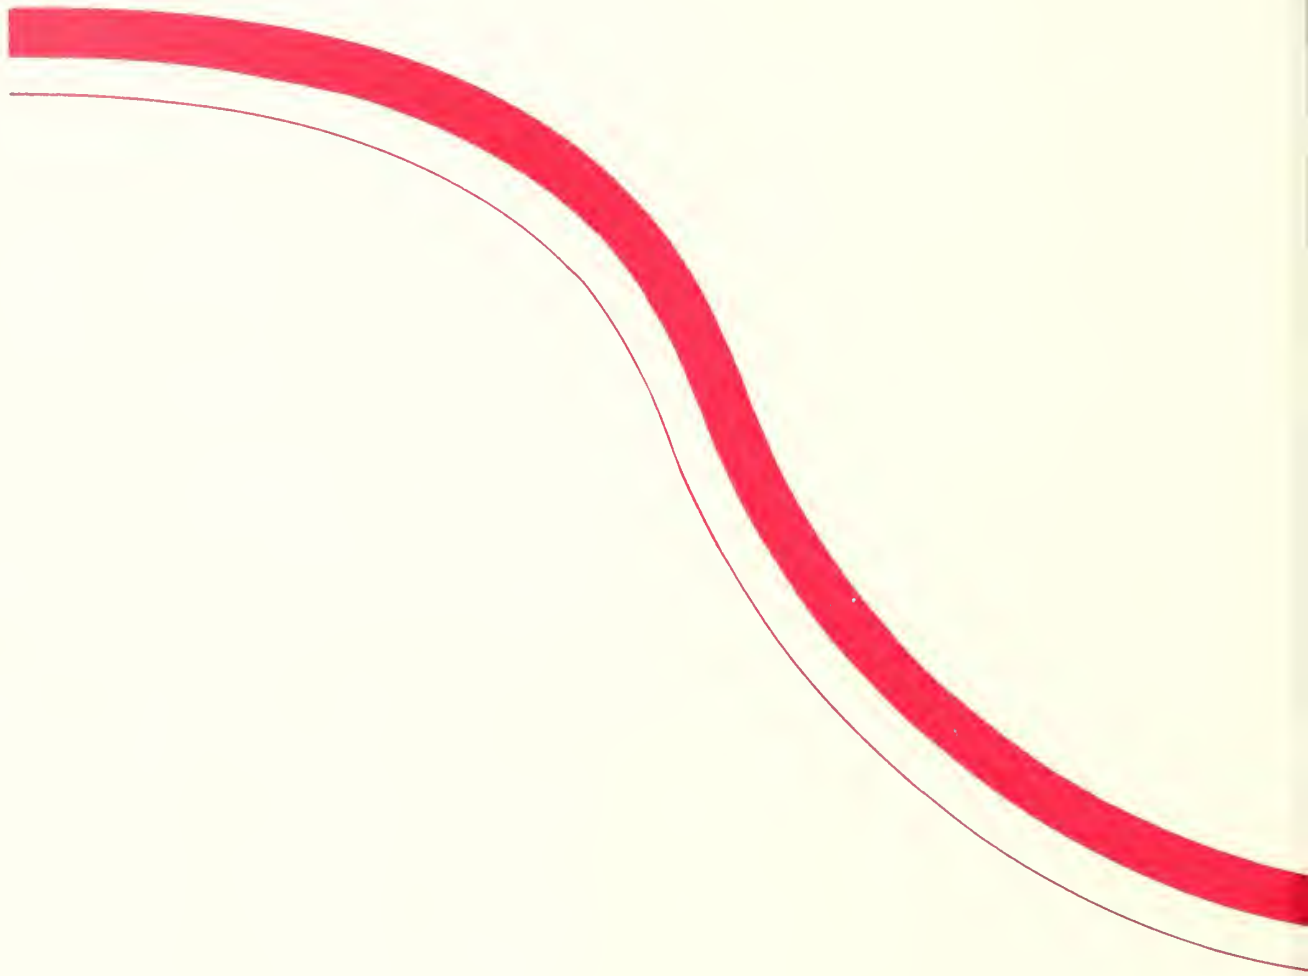

Following Easter vacation, the journalists presented their murder mystery, "Death of an Editor," and later in the month the Mermaids gave their annual water show. The girls in formation are carrying out the "Alice in Wonderland" theme. "The Importance of Being Ernest," the last Little Theatre production of the year began April 30 with the last performance being presented to the parents on Parent's Day in May.

April

Clubs and Honoraries

Orchestra

The college orchestra (top picture) directed by Professor Donald O. Cameron presented a concert in April consisting of a mixture of numbers, including the Clock Symphony by Haydn. The twenty-five members of the orchestra rehearse each week in preparation for concerts. A selected group of orchestra members provided music for Black Arrow.

Band

Playing for every home athletic event, both basketball and football as well as the Geneva and Grove City (see bottom picture) football games has kept the band busy marching and planning formations as well as practicing at the conservatory. The band, under the direction of Professor Donald O. Cameron, played for the presidential inauguration in October, at May day and at Commencement in June. In May the band, which consists of 65 members, gave a concert featuring the music of a group of modern composers.

Men's and Women's Glee Clubs

Women's Glee Club is under the direction of Miss Ada Peabody. President this year was Sara Davis. Members are: left to right, bottom row: L. McCurdy, C. Beck, M. Grant, R. Hodil, A. Vogel, C. Castrodale, L. Love, P. Knoer, B. Lewis. Second row: B. Stahlman, S. Marsteller, M. Patterson, A. Stoehr, C. Davis, Miss Peabody, S. Davis, N. Kling, G. Shaffer, O. Black, H. Papazickos, R. College Choir

A concert during Homecoming weekend in October, a program of both new and old Christmas carols and anthems, Bach's Passion according to St. Matthew on Palm Sunday, and the Faure Requiem at Baccalaureate were the most impressive performances of the College choir.

Rehearsing twice each week, the choir under the direction of Professor James W. Evans, sang sacred music by composers of all periods in music history at the weekly Sunday evening chapel services.

Officers of the choir were: Carolyn Holub, president Robert Lane, vice president; and Mina Belle Packer, secretary-treasurer.

YWCA

The purpose of YWCA is "To take Christ, live Christ, and give Christ" to the girls of Westminster. This year once again Christmas cards were sold to raise missionary money. Articles were made by the girls to be sent to one of the domestic mission stations. Gloria Jenzer was president, Nell Kling, vice president; Dorothy Roberts, secretary; and Nancy Shane, treasurer.

Cheerleaders

Mermaids

The spirit of '76 didn't have anything on the spirit that the Westminster cheerleaders displayed during the 1949-50 athletic season. At each pause in the games cheerleaders were out in front of the bleachers jumping, turning, and yelling to give that often needed lift to the team. The waving arms and swirling skirts moved as one, as the girls went through the cheers for the football, basketball, and soccer teams.

"Alice in Wonderland" was the theme of this year's Mermaid water pageant. The show, with its intricate and coordinated routines, illustrated the grace and form that is the main requirement of all Mermaids. Membership in Mermaids also requires that all girls pass tests in swimming, diving and treading water.

Outing Club Outing Club, which since pre-war days has been a women's group, accepted 14 men during the second semester. Early in the fall the group hiked to the college woods. Hot chili thawed out the hikers after a trip to Neshannock falls in February. Also, in February the group sponsored an all-college swimming party followed by dancing in Browne hall. A series of campcraft lessons taught by Miss Shirley Morgan of the physical education department was another part of the year's activities. Officers of the group are: Wilma Duff, president; Margaret Anderson, vice president; Janet Schaefer, secretary; and Juanita McNinch, treasurer.

Block "W" The goal of every football and basketball aspirant in Block "W", lettermen's club. The group presented senior members with gold footballs or basketballs. At "Winter Wonderland," Block "W" 's annual all-college formal, Rebecca Carson was named Block "W" queen.

To bring the national organization closer to students was the theme carried out by the Red Cross chapter on campus this year. A blood bank was opened where students had their blood tested, and an index of blood types was supplied the Lawrence county chapter. Entertainment units were organizing for the Veterans Administration hospital at Butler.

YMCA

Movies, speeches, panel discussions, music, and sports activities were part of the YMCA program in fulfilling the motto, "to improve body, mind and spirit." Serving as advisers were Mr. Harry Manley and Mr. Joseph Hopkins.

Third row: Francis Thom, Louis Barnhart, Frank Jones, Frederick McKnight, Robert Hamilton, Robert Brown, John Kimpel, John McKnight, Frank Davidson, Lee Cropp.

Fourth row: Charles Vogel, Edwin York, John Williamson, John Peterson, Emil Reznick, John Geldmacher, Alan Sternberg, Lauren Monroe, Robert Tanguay.

C. Y. F.

Holding a skating party, an October Halloween party and a party at College hall, the Christian Youth Fellowship enjoyed social as well as religious meetings together.

Meeting every Sunday evening in the Little Theatre, C.Y.F. has over 100 members. Special speakers who talked to the group during Sunday evening meetings were Lall Motilal, a native of Pakistan; Miss Jean Hollingsworth, intervarsity speaker; the Reverend Thomas Russell, minister of the Charlestown Presbyterian church; and Dr. Lee Walker, Religious Emphasis week speaker. Mr. James Evans, Mr. George Bleasby, and Dr. Blanche Carrier of the faculty also spoke to C.Y.F.

Dr. Will Orr told the Christmas story in flannelgraph interpretation and the Women's Glee club sang at a C.Y.F. Christmas service in the chapel.

Robert Boone served as C.Y.F. president this year.

J. V. C.

The Titan Varsity Club was organized in February this year to recognize men who have earned a letter in any sport recognized by the college authorities. The planning of such a group has been in progress for two years, but the men who helped to actually form the club and secure its approval this year are Duff Brown, Arthur Shaffer, Frederick Cassell, Robert Braun, Ralph Foster and Alex Spisak.

Karux

Karux, the pre-ministerial organization on campus has a membership of fifty men. The purpose of the fraternity is to provide fellowship and inspiration for men interested in entering the ministry. Weekly meetings featured speakers from members of the Bible faculty and visiting speakers from other denominations.

The group has taken a particular interest in Gordon College in India, providing reference Bibles for their use and corresponding with students at that college. Officers included: Donald Lammers, president; Thomas McLaren, vice president; Thomas Prosser, secretary-treasurer. Mark Landfried, chaplain; Robert Boone, alumni contact officer. Dr. John Orr is the sponsor.

Third row: Harold Denhart, Harold Byers, Arthur Schreiber, Charles Jackson, John Geldmacher, William Cooke, Robert Broun, Robert Canon, Richard Wakefield.

Fourth row: Francis Thom, Paul Weirman, Darrell Yeancy, Wallace Lash, James Clinefelter, Robert Ranck, Edwin York, Robert Garvin.

Life Service

The Life Service organization features primarily outside activities for students who plan to enter some form of Christian service. Gospel teams, caravan teams which work in local churches during summer vacations and between semesters, work with children in orphanages, settlement house work and the presentation of plays and programs in old people's homes are the most notable undertakings this year. Officers were: Frederick McKnight, president; John Rock, vice president; Wilma Duff, secretary; Marge Powell, treasurer.

C. G. A.

Working out a complete group of programs the Collegian Guild of the Air, otherwise known as C.G.A., had a chance to practice in the field of radio. These experimental programs are produced in weekly meetings of the group and by earning a number of points in these activities, a member may go into W.R.W.

W. R. W.

A new series of programs over WKST-FM on Thursday nights was the outstanding project of W.R.W. for the year. The weekly program was changed from Friday to Monday and a three hour show was arranged to be broadcast from the studios in the Library. Included in the programs have been music, drama, and educational talks in which both C.G.A. and W.R.W. have participated.

"30" Club

The purpose of "30" club, to explore the professional opportunities in journalism and to pursue every chance for practical experience in the field, have been carried out effectively this year. Movies showing the printing and engraving processes; learning about advertising agency work from James Oravetz, a journalism alumni; publishing "Information Please," the daily "Congress News" during the Mock Legislature, and "Squib," the journalism alumni publication, gave majors an opportunity for practical experience.

The third annual Journalism Night show, "Death of an Editor," written by James Case and Larry Friday was presented in the Community house in April. The proceeds were used to help pay for the installation of the United Press leased wire.

At the annual journalism awards dinner in April keys were awarded to outstanding journalism students. At the dinner Harold Burns, editor of the New Wilmington Globe, and William Kegel, editor of the Ellwood City Ledger, were made honorary members.

Officers were James Case, president; Mary McCoy, secretary; and Albert Krause, treasurer. Miss Elizabeth Nixon is faculty advisor.

Political Science Forum

Westminster students turned speech-makers, representatives, party leaders, page girls, reporters, and House of Representatives officials during the three day Mock Legislature sponsored by the Political Science Forum.

This was the first Mock Legislature held at the College and drew comments from state and national government leaders. Members of the forum served as committee heads in the "House" and generally outlined the bills to be presented during the three day sessions. Glenn Reed was the general chairman of the Mock Legislature.

Officers of the forum were Glenn Reed, president; Robert Patton, vice president; and Mildred Henderson, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Harry Manley is the advisor.

Second row, John Hammerstrom, Donald Totzke, John Regule, Arnold Tomell, Mr. Harry Manley.

Third row, Richard Georgia, Frank Davidson, Donald Wiley, Thomas Danner, Donald Russell, Kenneth Armour.

Physics Club IRC

A Westminster graduate Dr. Veasey, head of the research department of Dow Chemical company spoke to the Physics club and others who were interested in April. Trips were made to the University of Pittsburgh and to the University of Pennsylvania where Physics club members heard lectures on subjects in their field and talked with other physics students.

A representative was sent to the American Physical Society convention in New York. Officers of the group are: Thomas Lusk, president; Richard Kronk, vice president; and Donald Hartranft, secretary-treasurer.

W. A. A.

Left to right, bottom row: S. Nolph, J. White, M. Dewar, B. Estep, E. Regule, S. Snyder, G. Jenzer, L. Rubino, C. Philipbar, B. Shira, J. Schaefer, P. Ackerly, H. Eisenbeis, M. Torrey.

Second row: V. Roemer, G. McCandless, E. Etter, J. Gilliland, B. Bunce, C. Hancock, J. Cuthbert, E. Glaser, N. Henderson, M. Reichard, C. Hazen, G. Lorentz, P. Brasher, Miss Shirley Morgan.

Third row: N. Engle, J. Chapman, B. Stahlman, P. Hill, A. Aiken, L. Brodbeck, N. McCaw, J. Magee, L. Kneppshield, M. Wedel, B. Williams, M. Powell.

Fourth row: M. Lohse, R. Randall, E. Shindeldecker, M. Grant, M. Calvin, E. Mawhinney, K. Tidd, I. Tidd, R. Spangler, E. Matheny, D. Wallace.

Volleyball, basketball, softball and swimming tournaments were sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association for intramural competition among the sororities and independents this year.

A breakfast hike in honor of freshmen was held in the fall and a senior picnic and spring banquet were held later in the year.

W.A.A. jackets were awarded to Louise Rubino and Gloria Jenzer for earning points in sports.

Officers of W.A.A. this year were Gloria Jenzer, president; Louise Rubino, vice president; Sally Snyder, secretary; and Claire Philipbar, treasurer.

Holcad

Until this year the Holcad office had been a more or less convenient entrance to the library basement, but the construction of a private office within the old room has ended this. Holcad staff members now write in comparative quiet at their specially designed "horse shoe" desk.

Directed by Editor-in-Chief Glenn Hartman, the staff works Wednesday and Thursday evenings in the office preparing the news and spends Friday at the printers.

Assisting Glenn the first semester were Art Shaffer, managing editor; Bill Kegel, news editor; Sally McCoy, feature editor; Bob Carey, sports editor; Jack Shepherd, copy editor; and Dodie Renshaw, society editor.

The business manager was Al Mellor and advertising manager, Frank Ruth. Howard Frisbee handled circulation for the Holcad. Bob McEwan provided the chuckle of the week with his cartoons. Mr. George C. Collins, director of the News Bureau, is advisor to the paper.

The endless hours of work that go into the making of a yearbook often go unnoticed by the reader who checks to see if his name is spelled correctly and if his picture is flattering. But those who have watched this book grow, have stopped to realize the tremendous amount of time consumed and have real appreciation for the finished book.

A staff, early depleted by members who transferred or dropped by the wayside, the editing of a book without a room or place to work, complications that develop in any undertaking of this kind, the loyalty and time given out of heavy schedules—all these comprise the memories of the Argo group.

Regular staff meetings and planning, an advertising staff that completed its work ahead of schedule, an editor with amazing patience and ability and an advisor who spent many hours working with the staff when a deadline had to be met will be remembered by this year's staff.

Appreciation is expressed for members who did their own work so capably and filled in wherever needed.

Second row: William Kegel, Frances Davenport, Jean Kitchens, James Canan, Edwin Patrick, Joanne Klein, Ann Osterhout.

Second row: Beverly Lee, Peggy Jean Townsend, Jean Swindler, Mary McCoy, Roger Hawk, Norman Rudolph, William Anderson, Joanne Klein, Frances Davenport, Myra Reichard, Joan Henry.

Third row: Ann Ashbaugh, Barbara Hollingsworth, Carol Schmitt, Anita Oge, Mary Lou Cobner, Clifford Jones, Sue Horton, Alice Vogel, Nancy Brown, Jean Simpson, Janet McDanel.

"But all the fun's in how you say a thing" is not only a familiar quotation by Robert Frost, but it expresses the idea behind Westminster's semi-annual literary magazine, Scrawl.

Founded in March 1939 by Seroll, the English honorary, the magazine publishes student articles, short stories, book reviews, sketches, and poetry. Prizes are offered for the best humorous pieces, poetry, and all over work in each issue.

Using "The Wakening" for a theme, Patricia Hays edited the winter issue of Scrawl. Lyle Bramhall was managing editor, Edwin Patriek was associate managing editor, and Ann Nicodemus served as associate editor.

Co-editors William Anderson and Ann Nicodemus followed the layout of the Atlantic magazine in planning the spring issue of Scrawl. Pictures were used effectively on the cover and throughout the magazine for the first time. Edwin Patriek served as managing editor and Howard Frisbee was associate managing editor on this issue.

The large number of departments represented in student contributions indicates the broad scope of the magazine.

Dr. Myrta McGinnis is the advisor to the publication and Miss Elizabeth Nixon is technical advisor.

Target

Target sponsored several activities this year to carry out its purpose of furthering scholarship, activity, and service on campus. Selling Old Main Memorial plates, date books, and the opening of a tutoring bureau are listed as its service projects. During Autumn Weekend the girls cooperated with the Westminster Women's club of Pittsburgh in serving tea on Inauguration Day, and again with Cwens served as joint hostesses on Homecoming Day.

Six informal parties were held for freshmen girls in February and in the same month a tea was held for junior women. Miss Helen Sittig, Miss Alice Ligo and Miss Jane Hawkins acted as sponsors.

Cwens

Cwens, the sophomore women's honorary, promotes leadership among freshmen women. This year the first semi-formal dance of the year, "Forest Fantasy" was sponsored by Cwens. Other features of the year's program were the party for freshmen women at Browne hall and the early morning Christmas caroling of freshmen women. Miss Helen Sittig and Miss Jane Hawkins were advisers.

Whenever you're bursting with good news that can't wait—spread it by long distance telephone. There is no quicker way to make miles disappear and you can do it reasonably too. Long distance telephone rates are especially low after 6 P. M. and on Sundays and Holidays. Always make long distance your good news messenger. It's a sign of thoughtfulness that's sure to be appreciated.

A college education is something more than book learning. If a student fails to realize that fact, he misses one essential for life: the ability to get along with his fellow men. Especially is this ability important in our present world, where people daily are becoming aware of the friction between nations caused mainly by greed and selfishness.

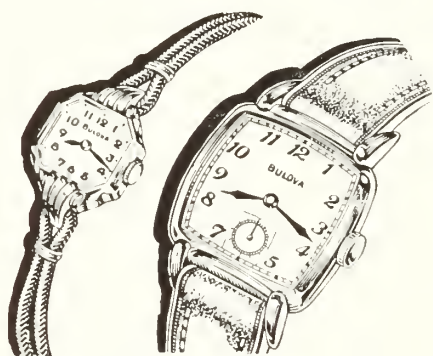

Even though the activities of sororities and fraternities may often appear superficial, they are not! For these organizations are trying to make of boys and girls men and women who can face squarely the problems of the after-graduation world.
